REACH - information from Univar Nordic

Dear Customer,

Univar would like to inform you as follows regarding REACH:

Univar is actively participating in the REACH process. Senior executives are in regular contact with the respective authorities and industry associations.

Considering the consequences of failing to pre-register, we expect all of our suppliers to pre-register their products. We have created a data-base with the responses from our suppliers which we can use to keep you informed. We are in contact with all our suppliers and working with them on ensuring that the product registration date, uses and exposure scenarios are communicated to Univar as soon as available. Unless we inform you otherwise you should assume that all products delivered by us will be pre-registered. Univar will inform you immediately we know of any product that will not be pre-registered or any changes to the registration intentions of our suppliers.

Complete information concerning final registration will not be available for all products until after the pre-registration stage has finished.

Terms & Conditions of Sale

The new EU REACH* Regulation increases the amount of information that must be communicated to Customers to enable them to use chemicals safely. REACH also requires Customers to communicate to their Supplier any new information that they may have on hazards and possible inadequacy of recommended risk management measures related to substances and/or preparations that they use.

REACH imposes on suppliers a process and time-line for the pre-registration and registration of chemical substances and/or preparations. If the supplier does not meet the necessary pre-registration and registration requirements, this may affect UNIVAR'S ability to guarantee continued supply of Customers' desired substance and/or preparation. Moreover, supply may be discontinued where substances and/or preparations are found to require further scientific assessment. As a result, supply of Customers' desired substance and/or preparation may be delayed. UNIVAR will endeavor to inform its customers of expected delays, in a timely fashion. However, UNIVAR cannot be held liable for such delays and any consequential impact.

For all dangerous substances and preparations covered by the REACH Regulation, Customers will receive safety data sheets, which may have one or more exposure scenarios attached. This safety data sheet and the related exposure scenarios will enable the Customer to check whether their current use of a particular substance and/or preparation is covered by the relevant safety data sheet and related exposure scenarios and whether the Customer complies with the conditions described on the relevant safety data sheet and exposure scenarios.

If a Customer intends to use a substance and/or preparation outside the conditions described in the relevant exposure scenario, or if a Customer's use is not covered by that exposure scenario, the Customer should make its use and/or use conditions known to UNIVAR as soon as possible. UNIVAR will then contact the relevant supplier to seek to obtain from the supplier of the substance and/or preparation the exposure scenario that covers the Customer's particular use conditions. Until this specific exposure scenario has been obtained and forwarded to the Customer, the Customer should not use the substance or preparation outside the conditions specifically described on the safety data sheet and related exposure scenario. UNIVAR cannot be held liable for the result of your failure to meet your REACH obligations in this regard..

* EU Regulation (EC) 1907/2006 concerning the Registration, Evaluation, Authorization and Restriction of chemicals.
